

CIPL newsletter

A new year, a new start....and a new website for CIPL!

We are very happy to introduce our new website. This site is hosted at the Dutch Language Institute in the Netherlands with a splendid computer infrastructure and a professional webmaster.

The new website offers a lot of space for news, and subscribing to our newsletter has become much easier! Read more.

---

Application round travel grants is open now

Also in 2021 CIPL awards travel grants of 500 euros (approx. US$550). Every advanced student in linguistics without a PhD is eligible to receive a one-time grant to help fund their participation in a linguistics conference.

The call is open from March 1st till May 15th. Read the procedure here.

---

International Congress 2023

ICL21 will take place in Kazan, Tatarstan, Russia. The organizers are Kazan Federal University, the Institute of Linguistics of the Russian Academy of Sciences in Moscow and of course CIPL. Read more.

---

From Leuven to Cape York Peninsula

From Leuven to Cape York Peninsula: the linguistic passion of Jean-

Christophe Verstraete. Frieda Steurs interviewed Jean-Christophe Verstraete about his project Documentation of the Paman languages of Cape York Peninsula, Australia. Read the interview here.

---

The Digital Pallas, a Russian dictionary

A team of researchers is preparing an annotated digital edition of the eighteenth-century Russian Comparative dictionary of all languages and dialects, compiled by the Prussian scholar Peter Simon Pallas on the initiative of none other than the Russian Empress Catherine the Great.

Nicoline van der Sijs wrote about this project.

---

The Linguistic Bibliography: a progress report

The Linguistic Bibliography's publisher, Brill, is reporting to us about the Linguistic Bibliography in 2020 and the progress made with the digitization of the older volumes. Read the report here.

---

Cooperation CIPL and Abralín

Approximately a year ago, the Brazilian Linguistics Association approached CIPL to propose a collaboration in the organization of a series of online lectures, named Abralín ao Vivo. As a result several important names in the field of linguistics were invited and their lectures started on May 4th 2020 with Noam Chomsky, introduced by Abralín and CIPL. Read more.

---

50th Poznan meeting

This year the Poznan Linguistic Meeting is celebrating its 50th meeting. Therefore CIPL contributes to this joyful meeting by organizing two additional sessions, one devoted to Language Technology and the other to Language Endangerment. Read the complete announcement here.

---

Introducing the Network of Regional Linguistic and Sociocultural Archives

Various academic institutions in South America working on linguistic and cultural documentation with indigenous peoples in the region have set up a network. This Network aims to strengthen the interaction and exchange of information and documentary resources between archivists, native and non-native researchers, and members of indigenous communities in the region. Read more.

---

Secretary-General: Prof Frieda Steurs

Email: frieda.steurs@ivdnt.org, frieda.steurs@kuleuven.be

Associate Secretary-General: Prof Camiel Hamans Email:

hamans@telfort.nl

---

